A Short Self Analysis

SIMPLY look and read - think and write, draw, doodle

FRIENDS CHOICES MENTORS
ENEMIES COACHES

FEET

Organs of locomotion! You can drag your feet - stand on your own feet - sit at the feet of a mentor - sweep someone off their feet - plant your feet.

hooves paws flippers

animals with claws have paws - herd animals have hooves - limbs adapted for swimming are flippers

and, ducks have feet

Make a list Time

1. choose an animal
2. identify the feet type
3. Make three headings:
normal, painful, never
4. Find out how long it will take you to write 10 things the animal would normally walk on, 10 it would be painful for them to walk on, and 10 that they would/could never walk on.

Risky Business

are you up for it?

Successful 'young adult' books depict teenagers accepting a measure of responsibility for their own choices and actions, and reflecting on their own growth and efforts to improve their part of the world.

Use a text/book you have already read, identify characters who

- produce the goods*
- provide evidence of inner goals*
- 'own' their own behaviour*
- focus on the future*
- understand their future*

Writing Task: write for the 'young adult' reader. The scenario is complex, you discovered these two items on the farm of a neighbour - you know they don't belong there, the neighbour is known to be violent. But, in the country everyone looks out for their neighbours. Your parents will be angry if you don't check it out (the wheels should be in his back shed; he always wears those boots), but (again) you were caught picking mangoes in his yard last week and you really don't want to see him. If you can, use some of the characteristics you identified to help decide what you will do.

BOOST TUTORING

FACEBOOK

we are a small business located on the Discover Coast in Queensland. Our Motto is: Influence Learning that is what we do?

As well as tutoring school age students, we mentor and coach adults in literacy for the workplace, career management and keeping up with technology.

WE HAVE TWO OTHER PASSIONS, and they both revolve around supporting teachers

Our TEACHER RELIEF PROGRAM

Every month we create a flexible Learning Package based on Literacy but not linked to any specific subject. Ideas included cover aspects of Literacy as described in the Australian National Curriculum. The Package does not include lesson plans. It does include activities, ideas and resources you can build lessons around.

Our goal, was to create quick, easy to set up and run, adaptable lesson activities as themes, or as 'breathers' for when everyone needs a break!
